Two nabbed for threats, obstruction of officers

By TRACEY TONG
Metro Ottawa

Two men accused of threatening to kill a pedestrian and obstructing officers when Gatineau Police arrived to investigate will appear in court today.

The suspects, between the ages of 25 and 30 years old, were driving north on Notre Dame Street in Gatineau at 12:34 p.m. on Saturday when they allegedly uttered a death threat to a pedestrian who was on the sidewalk at the time, Lieut. Raymond Brazeau said yesterday.

« (The second suspect) tried to assist the person who was being arrested. »
Lieut. Raymond Brazeau

The suspects were allegedly looking for drugs, Brazeau said. The victim called police and when officers located one of the suspects at 502 Watt St., a second suspect arrived and "tried to assist the person who was being arrested," Brazeau said.

Because the second suspect was acting aggressively, officers cordoned off an area around 502 Watt St. for security reasons.

The Gatineau swat team, Groupe d'Endiguement Arrestation Risque (GEAR), was called to assist in the arrest of the two suspects, said Brazeau.

The suspects were arrested without incident by 8:30 p.m. on Saturday night.

There were no injuries.

The suspects, whose names are not being released, face charges of uttering death threats and obstruction of justice.

Terror trial security tight

Court clamps down as case begins for bomb plot suspect

By TIM WIECLAWSKI

Cement partitions and security fences are in place and there will be no parking in areas of Elgin Street today as a high-profile terror trial gets underway in Ottawa.

More than four years after being arrested on criminal terrorism charges in connection to a bomb plot in England, the trial of Orleans resident Momin Khawaja, 33, begins today and security precautions are among the tightest Ottawa has seen, police say.

Newly installed security cameras, X-ray devices and additional police staff have been assigned to the downtown courthouse in a clamp-down Staff-Sgt. Dave Veinotte calls unprecedented for Ottawa police.

"There have been trials where there has been extra security provided and a magnetometer (walk-through metal detector), but not an X-ray device before," said Veinotte.

» The trial, being held before a judge but no jury, is expected to last four months, with tight security measures for the duration.

From her home in Orleans yesterday, Azra Khawaja, Momin's mother, was referring questions to Khawaja's lawyer, Lawrence Greenspon, who was unavailable for comment.

"We are not going to talk about any of the things; our legal team is the best people to call," she said.

British police named Khawaja as a co-conspirator in the case of five men jailed for life last year for plotting attacks on targets across Britain.

Although British authorities alleged Khawaja provided technical help with detonators, he was not charged. He is alleged to have built the devices in his parents' basement.

Khawaja, a software developer, faces life in prison if found guilty. He was arrested in March 2004 and has been jailed since. He is the first person charged under Canadian anti-terrorism laws put in place after Sept. 11, 2001. He has pleaded not guilty.

Fun, fundraising big winners at dragon boat fest

By TRACEY TONG
 Metro Ottawa

For Marcel Beaudry, it's as much about the fun as the fundraising.

Asked what keeps him coming to the Ottawa Dragon Boat Festival every year, the team captain of 'Tunney's Torpedo' said, "it's the team atmosphere. We spend the weekend together and have a barbecue. It's a lot of fun and the racing's great."

Competition, camaraderie and fundraising were all part of North America's largest dragon boat festival, which ended yesterday at Mooney's Bay, drawing over 65,000 people, including 5,000 paddlers from across Ontario.

"We had a great deal of paddlers. Our main tent was packed and tons of people were here enjoying the weekend. We (had) a little bit of rain, but it didn't stop anyone," said spokeswoman Ashley Brambles.

The event raised an estimated $250,000 for eight local charities, with pledges still to come. "We're on target for fundraising goals," said John Brooman, the festival's executive director. "We won't know until July 14."

The top benefiting charity — the Ottawa Senators Foundation — will receive at least $50,000, said foundation president Danielle Robinson. Funds received are directed to Roger's House, a local pediatric palliative and respite care home.

Kelly Zorzi, spokeswoman with the Pediatric Oncology

Group of Ontario, said her group's share of proceeds will help families pay for childhood cancer care costs not covered by insurance.

The festival also boosts awareness of the organization, Zorzi said, adding, "This helps to get the name of POGO out in the Ottawa area."

Other charities that benefit include the Candlelighters Childhood Cancer Support Program, Ottawa-Carleton Learning Foundation, Royal Ottawa Foundation for Mental Health, Algonquin College Foundation, Good Day Workshop and the Ottawa Children's Treatment Centre.

Unique guitar strikes chord

It's a guitar, but not one you can pick up at a music store.

It's made from former prime minister Pierre Trudeau's canoe paddle; Maurice Richard's Stanley Cup ring; wood from Lucy Maud Montgomery's house and copper from the roof of the Library of Parliament, among 60 other pieces of Canadiana.

It's the Six String Nation project and it was a star of the weekend's dragon boat races.

"The idea was to create a sense of Canada that's much more diverse and inclusive and includes more of the country," said project founder Jowi Taylor.

The guitar has been played by hundreds of famous Canadian musicians, including Feist, Colin James and Ron Sexsmith. It has been photographed with over 60,000 people in the past two years.

"Some people are really turned on by the famous pieces, like Trudeau's paddle, in it, and other people are excited by the fact that it's been played by Bruce Cockburn," Taylor said.

"It's got a very unique sound," said Ottawa's John Sloat, who tested the guitar yesterday at the race festival.

"I think it's because it's one of a kind and made from woods that aren't normally used together."

The guitar returns to Ottawa for Canada Day festivities, where it will be played by Blue Rodeo, and again for the Ottawa Folk Festival.

Ribfest serves up good grilling

Thousands flock to cook-off for taste of BBQ's best

Slather some chicken and ribs in barbecue sauce over an open flame, and just watch the crowds that follow their noses to you.

An estimated 300,000 visitors were enticed by the aromas onto Sparks Street Mall over five days to partake of the 17th annual International Chicken and Rib Cook-off, according to Sharon McKenna, executive director of the Sparks Street Mall.

"You can just smell it in the air," said Natalie Appleyard, who was attending her third cook-off event. "I like how everyone has sauce on their faces and nobody cares."

Her brother-in-law, Graeme, was attending his first cook-off, but made up for lost time by visiting on three separate days.

"It's delicious. These ribs are amazing, the sauce, the tenderness of the meat. It's so succulent," he said. "Uncle Sam's is my favourite this year."

Personal favourites aside, some heavy bragging rights are at stake when the cook-off hands out awards for best sauce, best chicken and best rib.

"Everyone starts with the same meat. It's how they cook it, and what rubs they put on the meat and the sauce (that counts) at the end," said McKenna.

Some of the top grill teams from across North America attend Ottawa's cook-off. This year, Blazing BBQ won for best chicken, Camp 31 won for best ribs, and Billy Bones had the best sauce.

Sean McNamara, the owner of Bibbs B.B.Q. from Naples, Fla., was disappointed to miss out on a trophy this time, but didn't count it as a wasted trip.

"Everyone looks forward to coming up and having a good time," he said. "Ottawa is one of the best by far. It's a great time and a great city."

Should Ottawa automate its LRT?

Reader weighs in on benefits of building system

It's days like this when I wish I'd paid more attention in physics class.

On Track reader Phillip Rogers wants to know what I think about the wisdom of going with light rail technology for Ottawa's proposed transit system, as opposed to automated light metro.

Um, what?

He writes, "It seems that the city has only put a two per cent increase in ridership. This puts LRT at an enormous strain at four cars at two minute frequencies, even in a tunnel."

ON TRACK
NADINE DOOLITTLE
nadine.doolittle@metronews.ca

He goes on to say that other North American cities are experiencing a five per cent annual increase in ridership, probably due to rising gas prices. If the same holds true for Ottawa that figure would have the LRT at capacity by 2031.

In a nutshell, no sooner will Ottawa's new transit system be in place than the city will have outgrown it.

LRT is the rapid transit of choice in many North American cities because of its lower price tag, but Rogers makes a case for investing in automated light metro. He writes, "For the planned length of the stations downtown, we could have nine-car metro system for a capacity nearing 1,500 per train."

But isn't that overkill? Not if the O-Train is anything to go by. The Canadian Urban Transit Association reports that O-Train reached its ridership projections "very quickly." As it is, OC Transpo has the highest per capita ridership in North America.

Rogers asks, "Shouldn't we just bite the bullet and build automated light metro technology now, rather than invest in a stop-gap-25-years technology?"

The technical differences between the two systems are beyond me, but biting the bullet isn't. With Transport Minister Lawrence Cannon's warning that the feds won't fund public transit operating costs, I want to know what's the payoff in investing in a metro? Potentially billions, says Jean-François Roy who has been studying the technologies for two years. The lower operating costs of Vancouver's automated system,

SkyTrain, saves a dollar per user per trip. "This means for a city the size of Ottawa, billions of dollars over 50 years."

No driver, no drivers' salaries, therefore more trains can be run, carrying more people, thereby attracting more users without costing the system more dollars.

Now, that I understand.

Nadine Doolittle is an award-winning writer and a public transit user for the past 35 years.

immigration plan. They will consult," Dion told Torstar News Service. "We don't like what the Conservatives have done on immigration, but we want to come with a good plan to propose to Canadians and Michael and Maurizio have decided they will come with recommendations for the party."

The federal Liberals once owned the immigration issue in Canada and counted im-

"Our voluntary pilot project will enable us to see if the technology can accelerate the screening process," CATSA's interim CEO Kevin McGarr said in a release.

The security officer who operates the machine sees a simplified image of passengers' bodies. Another officer, in a private room, sees detailed black-and-white images.

The system will operate on a volunteer basis until Jan. 30, 2009, when CATSA will deliver its recommendations to Transport Canada.

Union head suspicious of Air Canada layoffs

The head of CUPE is calling the recent Air Canada announcement to slash jobs "suspicious" in timing and nature.

The Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) national president Paul Moist told Metro exclusively that Air Canada's plan to slash 2,000 jobs is convenient at a time when gas prices are rising.

"The outlook for the industry is serious, but we're suspicious about the emphasis, timing and intent of this announcement," Moist said.

He also pointed out airline industry expert Joseph D' Cruz's assertion to CBC last week that "there is no evidence Air Canada is in serious difficulty."

CUPE represents 7,000 Air Canada flight attendants, many of whom fear the loss of their job.

"Air Canada seems to prefer to prefer to lay off its lowest paid staff rather than let its highest paid employees leave voluntarily," Moist added.

Air Canada spokesperson Angela Mah told Metro the cuts are a reflection of fewer flights due to high prices of gas.

"The cuts are a direct result of the flights we are cutting down. We're reducing the flights that have become unprofitable," she said.

Bomber kills 15 in Iraq

Suicide attack by woman aimed at police officers

A female suicide bomber blew herself up among policemen outside a restaurant north of Baghdad yesterday, killing 15 people and wounding 35, Iraqi police said.

The attack took place in Baquba, capital of multi-ethnic Diyala province, where Sunni Islamist al Qaeda militants have sought to sow tension despite a succession of military offensives that have put the group on the back foot.

Police said the woman walked over to a group of policemen outside a restaurant then detonated explosives under her clothing. Several cars were set on fire.

"When she approached the police patrol, a powerful blast ripped through the area," said Adnan Fayadh, a photocopy shop owner who was nearby.

Police and the U.S. military said 15 people were killed in the attack, which was also near a number of government buildings in Baquba, 65 kilometres north of Baghdad. The U.S. military said the dead included seven policemen.

At a hospital morgue, white sheets covered most of the dead. A man wailed over a body lying on a stretcher.

Violence in Iraq has dropped to a four-year low, but yesterday's bombing was the second big attack in the past week.

U.S. forces have blamed a rogue Shiite militia group for a truck bomb that killed 63 people in Baghdad last Tuesday. That was the deadliest attack in Baghdad in more than three months.

U.S. officials accuse al Qaeda insurgents of carrying out scores of large-scale bombings, killing thousands of people in Iraq in the past few years.

A sustained military campaign against al Qaeda has pushed the group out of its traditional strongholds in Anbar province in the west and parts of Baghdad in the past year.

One region where al Qaeda forces regrouped was in the northern city of Mosul, described by the U.S. military as al Qaeda's last major urban stronghold.

Iraqi security officials say al Qaeda's network has been broken in Mosul following an offensive there.

More than 800 people were missing yesterday after a Philippine ferry capsized in a typhoon that has killed scores and left a trail of destruction across the archipelago.

Sulpicio Lines, the owner of the MV Princess of Stars, revised up the number of people missing to 845 after discovering an extra 100 passengers on the ship's manifest. Only four people are so far known to have survived the ferry disaster and they said many did not make it off the ship in time.

Crowded life-rafts sank in cold, storm-tossed seas.

"Many of us jumped, the waves were so huge, and the rains were heavy," a survivor identified only as Jesse told local radio.

"There was just one announcement over the megaphone, about 30 minutes before the ship tilted to its side. Immediately after I jumped, the ship tilted, the older people were left on the ship."

Four people have been confirmed dead.

TONSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Which way will you shift?

EARTH TONES
SOPHIA DORE &
ANDREW LAURSEN
earthtones.metro@gmail.com

Did you feel the shift? Well, maybe that's because at this stage it is only a proposed shift — a Green Shift, that is.

Late last week the Liberal party introduced a proposed revenue-neutral shift in burden from personal income and corporate taxes to carbon taxes to be imposed on wholesalers and passed on to the consumer. The idea seems to be improving environmental consciousness through sticker shock (higher power and heating bills), but without actually reducing purchasing power, particularly for those earning lower wages. In fact, the proposed tax is a flat tax per tonne of carbon, while the reduction in income taxes is progressive, greater relief at the bottom, so the overall affect would be to make Canada's taxation structure more progressive.

Sounds like a plan with some merit, but our question to you is your threshold for changing habits? The entire plan is predicated on the idea that you will be so dismayed by the high cost of your heating bill that you will turn it down a couple degrees — since you will be stunned by the hydro bill, you will keep your thermostat two degrees warmer in the summer and start turning off the lights. Is this likely?

Consider the example of gasoline. Gas prices have increased by more than 250 per cent over the past decade, increasing by nearly 30 per cent in the past year alone. Still, we are only now seeing a shift in driving habits, primarily with people purchasing more fuel efficient cars (great time to buy that SUV, it will make a lovely garden piece). Most vehicles going down the road are still carrying only one person. That's one-and-a-half tonnes of steel designed to move a mere 70 kilograms of flesh.

Given that the current fleet of new passenger cars get an average of 27.5 mpg in the U.S., and assuming the same in Canada (8.7 L/100 km), a driver travelling 10,000 kilometres per year will pay more than $1,150 per year. Given the same fuel efficiency and driving habits, this person would have spent more than $550 per year only five years ago. That's an increase in fuel costs of $600. And that's a VERY conservative estimate, with most drivers covering much more than 10,000 kilometres per year, with most drivers in older vehicles with reduced efficiency, and with many of us driving larger vehicles like SUVs. Still, we are only now changing our habits.

The Liberal party press release suggests the average cost per household of the new carbon taxes will be $225 to $250 per year. Is this going to change our energy consumption habits? The experience with gasoline suggests no.

So how could this "Green Shift" actually shift us toward green? One possibility is a carrot to industry. Make the proposed cuts in business taxes contingent upon environmental performance. Making tax cuts "so they can invest more in their own practices, reduce their own polluting and increase their energy efficiency" (Liberal party website, A Green Shift For Canada) sounds good, but with a responsibility to shareholders, this tax cut may not translate to greener operations.

Clean green around the home

ROUTINE When it comes to cleaning around the house, adding some green to your routine is easier than you might think. Consider the following environmentally-friendly cleaning practices.

» When cleaning countertops and fixtures, use reusable cloths or rags rather than disposable paper towels.

» Rather than using chemical carpet cleaners, treat carpet stains by lightly sprinkling baking soda over the carpet. Rub it into the fabric and then vacuum the area after one hour.

» Polish furniture with a mixture of one teaspoon of lemon juice and one cup of vegetable oil. Apply the mixture to your furniture using a reusable cloth.

MEET CANADA'S NEWEST IDOLS

Nearly 10,000 auditioned, only 24 are left – now it's up to you to decide the rest. Tonight, for the first time in Canadian Idol history, 24 competitors will advance to the next phase of the competition on CTV. It's the beginning of a journey that will end with the crowning of the newest Canadian Idol in September.

Ranging in age from 17 to 29, the Top 24 were selected following an exhaustive search that took Canadian Idol judges to 10 cities and one "online stop" on the three-month audition tour. Among this season's elite group are a carpenter, a student, a housepainter, a songwriter, a backhoe operator, a music teacher, a respite care worker, a coffee barista and more, all representing Canada from coast to coast.

Now it's your turn, Canada! Over the next few weeks, the Top 24 will compete for your votes – only you can decide who will advance to the Top 10. Each vote means the chance to make dreams come true. Multiple competitors will be sent home every Wednesday, with 14 singers exiting the competition in just three short weeks. Canada has just one chance to get it right and choose the best 10 competitors who will be left vying for the prize. These 10 singers will entertain the country for the rest of the summer as part of Canada's biggest summertime television event. Get ready to vote!

Casillas stops pair of penalties to knock out Italy

EURO2008

Spain beat Italy 4-2 on penalties after a goalless Euro 2008 quarter-final yesterday to end their shootout jinx and reach the last four of a major tournament for the first time in 24 years.

They will now face Russia, who they thrashed 4-1 in their opening group game, thanks to substitute midfielder Cesc Fabregas who scored the decisive spot kick after Iker Casillas had saved two of Italy's penalties.

It is the first time Spain have reached the last four since they got to the European Championship final in 1984 and came after they had lost three previous quarter-final shootouts in major tournaments, all on June 22.

The victory was also their first over Italy at a major tournament outside the Olympic Games.

"It was about time we won one, we deserve it," said

Casillas, who saved from Daniele De Rossi and Antonio Di Natale.

"Losing on penalties again would have been terrible. Now the fans can enjoy this because we've got to the semifinals at last."

The game ended goalless after extra time as both well-organized defences coped relatively comfortably with the too-cautious attempts to break them down.

"It was a very evenly balanced game," said Spain coach Luis Aragones. "Italy are always a difficult side to break down and very dangerous on the break."

Two years ago Italy won the World Cup on penalties and current coach Roberto Donadoni had no complaints yesterday.

"The players should leave here with their heads held high," he said.

Germany will face Turkey in the other semifinal on Wednesday in Basel, Switzerland.

Federer forgets Paris to focus on Wimbledon

World No. 1 says he won't fret over defeat

Five-time Wimbledon champion Roger Federer said yesterday he had banished thoughts of his 6-1, 6-3, 6-0 French Open mauling at the hands of Rafael Nadal and planned to dominate the draw at the All England Club as usual.

"It's almost easier to forget a loss like that," the world No. 1 said on the eve of his bid for a modern-era record sixth consecutive singles title.

"The French Open was over in such a hurry ... so it's easy just to look forward and concentrate on grass. I won't be on clay for 10 months so it really hasn't been a problem.

I'm happy I haven't been affected by it," he said.

"I'm still pretty proud of achieving my third French Open final but for some I guess that's still not good enough,"

he added.

The Swiss top seed said he did not read newspapers and so had taken no notice of comments from former players that he was more vulnerable now at Wimbledon, especially as Nadal had also won his first grasscourt title at Queen's last week.

"What other people and players say I cannot control. But you'll always hear good and bad things. It's maybe a time where some people talk a little bit too much sometimes," he said.

"I just like to be favourite and like to come and try to dominate other players," the Swiss star added.

If he wins the title, Federer will become only the second player to win six in a row after William Renshaw in the 1880s, when the competition was much smaller.

After winning his first title, Renshaw had only to win one match in the Challenge round to defend the crown.

Federer begins his defence — the first of seven matches if he goes all the way — on Centre Court today against Dominik Hrbaty of Slovakia.

High school personas affect career: Study

Does your status in high school impact where you'll eventually be in the workforce?

As high school graduations approach, Career Builder.com asked over 6,000 full-time workers age 30 and older to categorize their high school persona, and then compared those personas in terms of job level, salary, industry and job satisfaction.

Categories included personas such as student government, athlete, geek, honour society, cheerleader, drama club, teacher's pet and class clown.

"Thirty-nine per cent of workers age 30 and older said their high school experience had an influence on the job they hold today," said Rosemary Haefner, vice-president of human resources at CareerBuilder. "While there are a variety of factors that determine one's career path, high school ... is essentially a stepping stone into a world of opportunity."

workers serving in director/manager/ team lead positions today (24 per cent). Teacher's pets also had the greatest number of workers holding administrative/clerical positions (41 per cent).

Former honour society members, athletes and geeks were more drawn toward professional and technical Former student government members were more likely to report making a six-figure salary with 12 per cent stating they are paid an annual salary of $100,000 or more. Honour society members followed and then athletes, geeks and class clowns.

Student government and honour society members and athletes ranked highest among those who earn an annual salary of $50,000. Teacher's pets were more likely to report earning less than $35,000 per year.

Job satisfaction levels are highest among teacher's pets and cheerleaders. Eighty-one per cent of teacher's pets and 76 per cent of cheerleaders said they are satisfied with their jobs overall.

Geeks and class clowns had the greatest number of workers who reported dissatisfaction with their jobs at 21 per cent and 18 per cent, respectively.

Interview gaffes occur often

By RAFAEL BRUSILOV
for Metro Ottawa

If you've ever embarrassed yourself at a job interview, you can take some solace in the fact that plenty of other people have done the same.

What's important is to learn from your mistakes so you can be better prepared the next time.

Lara Dodo, vice-president of administrative staffing firm OfficeTeam, has compiled a staggering collection of job interview blunder stories in her years helping people find work. She says most gaffes, big and small alike, boil down to a lack of common sense or simply poor judgment.

Cellphones are a frequent culprit, as users tend to lose their grip on sanity when handling or dealing with them.

Once, Dodo says a candidate with more guts than brains took a call on their cell phone during an interview — a call which was for another job interview happening later that day at a different company.

Other classic flubs involved interviewees confusing the company name with a competitor's or even mixing up their own job backgrounds or having resumé embellishments revealed.

Unlike one person who Dodo says showed up in workout clothes, always dress conservatively even for positions, which may allow for casual attire. "No interview is casual," Dodo said.

Above all, remember the age-old adage and don't shoot the messenger the front desk even — they are, after all, your gatekeeper. Leaving your cellphone on is a common mistake for interviewees to make.

into the job.

"Always be polite and professional to receptionists — research has shown that receptionists play a highly influential role in the hiring process. If you're rude, it won't reflect well," Dodo said.

A big cause for interview screw-ups is nervousness, Dodo says.

"Nerves can do some crazy thing to you. If the interview is at 11 o'clock, don't get there at 10:59. Give yourself time to relax. Be prepared and know what to expect in the interview," Dodo said.

If you do make a gaffe, show that you can fix it.

"If you are aware that you've made a mistake, apologize and correct yourself. Any problem that's handled gracefully may actually impress your interviewer," Dodo said. Don't give up right away if you've flubbed your first impression — you may be able to turn things around with your personality, skills and experience.

In the worst cases, learn from your mistake, let it go, and tell your friends about it over drinks.

"And at least it'll make for a great story," Dodo said.

Blondie hits milestone

New Wave band marks 30 years of Parallel Lines

By KUMAR SAHA
for Metro Ottawa

You could call it the curse of Blondie. Debbie Harry prefers "double-edged sword."

For the iconic front woman of the equally iconic band, more than three decades of being under the spotlight has been a little bittersweet.

"You are really proud of your success, you are proud of the things you've written and done, yet it sort of haunts you in a way," says the 62-year-old grand dame of '70s New Wave glitterati.

Success rarely gets much bigger than Blondie's 1978 opus Parallel Lines, a rock milestone which not only spawned uber hits such as Heart Of Glass and One Way Or Another but also helped make New York's underground DIY sounds a household phenomenon.

"It really changed what was being played on radio in the (United) States and Blondie front woman Debbie Harry says Parallel Lines "really changed what was being played on radio in the (United) States and opened up a whole new era of more modern music."

opened up a whole new era of more modern music. Up until that time most of the music had been more country-rock, blues-directed kind.

This was more urban ... slightly more sophisticated, punky sound," Harry says.

Blondie is currently on a North American tour to mark the 30th birthday of Parallel Lines. An expanded anniversary edition of the album, featuring four bonus tracks and a DVD of three music videos and a BBC Top Of The Pops performance, is due out this week.

Harry admits that keeping a bunch of songs, whose influence is only matched by their ubiquity, relevant and evolving is a constant challenge for the band, which now includes only two other original members, guitarist Chris Stein and drummer Clem Burke.

"The trick is to not just stand there like a robot, the trick is to make it come alive for the audience and the band," she says. "We have played the material for a long time and that could get a little bit stale. We're gonna try to freshen up the feel and give it a new slant, a fresh coat of paint."

Although there is no specific plan for the future or a new Blondie album, Harry has been working with Stein on a few tracks.

"I don't know exactly what we're going to do with them. We're talking about putting little samples of the stuff that we've been working on on the Internet," she says, adding that the band is currently without a label.

Feist album boosts label

Canadian independent label Arts & Crafts may be enjoying the biggest hit of its six-year existence, but label co-founder/president Jeffrey Remedios says he'll never change his "quality over quantity" business mantra.

The Toronto-based label has seen Feist's The Reminder become a runaway hit, selling more than 200,000 copies in Canada.

"It has allowed us to build out our infrastructure," Remedios says. "We now have all the tools at our disposal that any much larger label has."

Remedios points to increases in the label's publicity, marketing and retail abilities in recent months as a demonstration of Arts & Crafts' rise in stature.

Rap stars weigh record options

Many artists near end of contracts

As a string of high-profile hip-hop artists near the end of their record contracts, a question looming over their pending free agency isn't which major label they'll sign with but whether they should sign with a major.

One prominent rap artist has already jumped ship: Jay-Z signed a long-term recording, publishing and management deal earlier this year with Live Nation. A Def Jam spokeswoman says Jay-Z has one album left on his contract with the label, but Def Jam head Shakir Stewart said recently that "we're still working it out."

While few rappers can match the pull and marketability of the former Def

LL Cool J, left, and 50 Cent are among the many rap artists now nearing the end of their major-label record deals.

Jam president, big names like 50 Cent, LL Cool J and OutKast will soon be on the market as well. Although they may ultimately re-sign with major labels, their camps have indicated that they are at least contemplating the possibility of a future without a major-label deal.

LL Cool J will complete his three-album deal with Def

Jam with the Aug. 5 release of Exit 13. By the end of the year, 50 Cent is expected to put out Before I Self Destruct, the fourth and final album on his Interscope deal. OutKast owes LaFace/Zomba three more albums under the duo's four-album contract, with all three releases expected this year and next. Tiphonie Watson, co-manager for OutKast's Big Boi, says the duo hasn't decided yet whether to seek another deal with a major, but adds, "It's much more beneficial to do it on your own. For an artist with an established fan base, there's more than one way to come up with strategic branding."

Notwithstanding Lil Wayne's first-week platinum sales for Tha Carter III, a contemporary rap album is lucky to sell an average of 35,000 copies in its first week. As of June 8, year-to-date U.S. sales of rap albums were down 25 per cent from the same period of 2007, compared with an 11.4 percent drop in overall album sales. Meanwhile, unauthorized mixtapes, which recently have been among the most buzzworthy releases in hip-hop, have been reaching audiences through independent channels. REUTERS

Fixing Canada's top bedroom problem

COLIN & JUSTIN'S INTERIOR DIVINE

Come on, this one's a no brainer — careful planning will transform your slumber zone into a calming, special sanctuary. Yup, a well crafted boudoir should be a relaxing retreat and an escape from the outside world.

But as we often say, "To fail to plan is to plan to fail." Many bedrooms, in reality, are crazy obstacle courses of piled-up laundry, mismatched furniture and saggy past-the-sell-by-date mattresses.

Colin & Justin say Gluckstein Home bedding at the Bay is "awesome value." Above, Percidio bed linens from Gluckstein Home's Steel collection. See more www.glucksteinhome.com.

The biggest Canadian bedroom problem is multitasking, which is to say, asking too much of too small a space.

So that means no ironing boards, no exercise bikes and definitely no computers stashed in a corner. Remember — it's a bedroom, after all, not a home office or gym.

The main event in any slumber zone is the bed and, because it's the largest feature, it identifies your space. In much the same way as a painted or papered feature wall will provide personality, so too

banishing bedroom blues

Turn your nightmare bedroom into a heavenly haven by following these simple tips:

- » Make your bed a tactile feast by mixing satin with cool cotton and topping the lot with a luxurious silky throw.
- » Satisfy your sense of smell with relaxing scented candles or some good old fashioned fresh air. During warmer months, air out your bedroom for at least half an hour each day.

- » Make sure bedrooms are cozy and restful. Avoid bright colours like vivid orange and zesty yellow as they won't induce sleep.
- » Turn your mattress every week to make it last longer and spread wear and tear.
- » Don't overfill closets — lose the things you no longer wear. And seasonally adjust as the climate changes. Vacuum-pack winter garb until the mercury descends.

- » Position your bed diagonally opposite the entrance door on the largest unbroken wall and make that your feature wall.
- » Opt for warm flooring such as wood or carpet, and avoid ceramic tile, marble or granite. There's nothing worse, after all, than getting out of bed and stepping onto a cold floor.

will a well dressed bed provide visual punch.

It's so worth taking all this into account when shopping for a new bed — or bed linen — so make sure you have a plan. Remember the aforementioned caution.

One third of your life, after all, is spent tucked in, so invest in a good quality mattress and treat yourself to the best pillows and dressings you can find. Brian Gluckstein's range at the Bay is awesome value, so wander in for inspiration.

Ask yourself this question — what price good slumber? As far as we're concerned, a great night's sleep is a better tonic than a life coach and more rejuvenating than Botox. So get it right!

Colin and Justin's Home Heist airs on HGTV Tuesdays at 9 p.m., Saturdays at 7 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m.

Father-daughter box-office battle

Preparing for a film role can be daunting, but as the daughter of Will Smith, Willow Smith didn't have to go far for acting advice, reports People News Online.

"My dad gives me tips," Willow told People last week at the New York City premiere of Kit Kittredge: An American Girl, in which she co-stars. "He says listen to the director and feel the moment." And did she feel the moment? "Yes, I did."

Willow, who hit the red carpet with her mom Jada Pinkett Smith and brother Jaden, also enlisted her family to assist in the wardrobe department.

"My mom helped and the stylist helped," said the 7-year-old actress of her premiere attire: a sequined shirt, Capri pants, Tory Burch shoes and strands of green and red woven into her braids.

As for her Kit Kittredge attire, "I didn't have a lot of makeup," said Willow. "Basically, for me it's just clothes, clothes, clothes, shoes."

The child actress, who also appeared in her dad's film I Am Legend, enjoyed tapping into her creative side on screen.

"It's really fun," says Willow of acting. "Because on the set, the directors tell you something and you can do it a whole different way. And they will still like it."

And with dad Will starring in the film Hancock on July 2, the same day Kit Kittredge opens, which Smith does Willow think will do better at the box office? One word: "Me."

Fiddy not amused by Taco Bell name-change 'stunt'

50 Cent has no problem telling Taco Bell where to stick its chalupa, according to E! News Online.

The feud-sparking rapper, whose legal team is already engaged in a mother of a battle with his conspiracy-theorist baby mama, has lashed out at the fast-food franchise for having the cojones to suggest he change his name to 79, 89 or 99 Cent (his choice) to help promote the chain's value menu.

Apparently, that was a little too much thinking outside the bun for the lawyered-up rapper, who not only took issue with the promo stunt, but threatened to sic his legal team on the chain. "When my legal team is finished with them, Taco Bell is going to have a new corporate slogan: 'We messed with the bull and got the horns!'" Fiddy said.

The rapper's rep went one further, calling out the company's big cheese on his cheekiness. "This is a sleazy and ill-conceived publicity stunt by Taco Bell's president, Greg Creed, whose disingenuous offer was leaked to the press before it was even presented to 50 Cent's agent yesterday," the rapper's rep said.

As it is, the taco giant's offer was sent to Fiddy — and, of course, the media — promising to donate $10,000 US to a charity of the rapper's choice if he agreed to the name change. Also requested from the franchise chief was for the newly monikered rapper to visit one of Taco Bell's locations and rap his order at the drive-thru. "We know that you adopted the name 50 Cent years ago as a metaphor for change," the letter read. "We at Taco Bell are also huge advocates for change. We encourage you to 'Think Outside the Bun' and hope you accept our offer."

CBC finally gets it right

IN CASE YOU MISSED IT:

Air India 182, which aired last night on CBC, puts me in the rare position of not only recommending a CBC production that isn't Dragon's Den, but insisting that you make time to catch the film when it re-airs.

CBC viewership figures, much as they might be spun to make it look like the national broadcaster is constantly on the verge of recovering its profile among viewers, suggest nonetheless that anything that airs on the network stands a worse chance of being seen by the average Canadian than a Simpsons re-run.

If a kind of Pavlovian aversion to CBC programming should prevent anyone from seeing Sturla Gunnarsson's dramatized recreation of the 1985 bombing of an Air India jumbo jet en route from Canada to England, it would be a shame, since this is exactly the sort of project the CBC should be commissioning, not occasionally but almost monthly, in a better world.

Gunnarsson is the director who made the far better movie version of Beowulf — the one that cost a fraction of Robert Zemeckis' recent heavily hyped travesty, with its embarrassing video game digital sheen.

His retelling of the Air India 182 story borrows a few formal touches from Paul Greengrass' United 93, but paces itself more gravely, as if in responding to the passage of time in which the tragedy has resonated.

Time flashes back and forth in the first half of the film, as the events leading up to the bombing come into focus, and then seems to blow apart in slow motion in the aftermath of the disappearance of the plane over the North Atlantic. We're allowed to understand how hard it would have been to prevent the bombing with what information the RCMP had up till this point — in situations like this, hindsight is inevitably all too clear — while the underfunding and bureaucratic blunders of the country's intelligence services make their appearance on cue; a muddledheaded CSIS policy of erasing wiretaps after having them transcribed would lead to two key suspects in the plot by Sikh extremists being acquitted.

Even while it was happening, the events surrounding Air India 182 often seemed confusing, and there was an unfortunate tendency to treat it as an internal dispute within the Indian and Sikh communities — typified by then-Prime Minister Brian Mulroney's puzzling apology to the Indian government, but not the families of Canadians who actually died in the bombing. Gunnarsson somehow manages to make it all clear, without swamping the film in details and lessening the still-raw emotional trauma that marks those left behind.

Air India 182 re-airs next Sunday at 10 p.m. on CBC Newsworld, and deserves a few more airings and a decent life on DVD, if only to give the network a prominent model for how to fulfill its mandate.

Degrassi: The Next Generation

Jefferson Starship? Nope. Wrong generation. In the season finale, "We Built This City," Liberty and Damian (Sarah Barabale-Tishauer, Mazin Elsadig) can't fight their attraction any longer and finally lock lips at the prom. When Emma and Toby (Miriam McDonald, Jake Golds-bie) find out, all heck breaks loose. Singer Natasha Bedingfield guest stars. 7 PM on 104 CTV 7 CTV

Tennis

The coronation of Roger Federer as perhaps the greatest men's tennis player ever took another step last year at Wimbledon when he won his fifth straight title, equaling Bjorn Borg's consecutive-win record. Beginning today in England, the Swiss star goes for No. 6, and as in the 2007 final, he'll probably have to beat rival Rafael Nadal to get it. On the women's side, it's wide open, similar to last year when 23rd-seeded Venus Williams rose to the top. 7 AM on 30 TSN

Amy dead in three months?

Father's concern: Amy Winehouse's father Mitch says the Grammy-winning singer is suffering from emphysema and he fears she could be "dead in three months," usmagazine.com reports.

"The doctors have told her if she goes back to smoking drugs it won't just ruin her voice, it will kill her," he told UK newspaper the Daily Mail.

Winehouse, 24, was taken to the hospital last week for tests after she fainted at home in London.

"With smoking the crack cocaine and the cigarettes her lungs are all gunked up," Mitch said. "There are nodules around the chest and dark marks. She's got 70 percent lung capacity."

If she doesn't get treatment, she could need an oxygen mask to breathe, Mitch told the Daily Mail.

"The doctors have said that if she had continued the way she was going she could have ended up an invalid — she wouldn't have been able to breathe," he added. "If drugs mean more to her than breathing properly, then so be it."

Woody sued for alleged photog smackdown

LAW SUIT Photographer Josh Levine sued Woody Harrelson for $2.5 million Friday, claiming Harrelson injured him both physically and emotionally when he roughed him up two years ago outside a Hollywood club, E! News Online reports, per the Los Angeles Times. The video Levine shot at the time shows the star breaking Levine's camera, choking him and shoving the camera into his ribs, the complaint alleges.

Naomi alleges racial slur

ALTERCATION Naomi Campbell pled guilty Friday to assaulting police officers after a mid-air disturbance on British Airways and was fined and sentenced to community service.

But here's some backstory from Britain's Sky News (via gossip guy Perez). Yes, Naomi admits she was wrong, but she has more to say about why she went off, E! News Online reports:

"I was called a racial name on that flight. And that was part of my reaction. ... I was called a golliwog supermodel, I don't think that's really fair, do you?"

Revenge best served as a song

DUMPED Former Spice Girl Melanie Brown is getting her revenge on ex-partner Eddie Murphy — by penning a song about him for her upcoming album, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The singer was dumped by the actor on TV while she was pregnant with his child last year. But Brown has been hitting the studio to get her own back. She tells Britain's New! magazine, "The working title is Beverly Hills Ck, because that's what he is."

"He never bothers with his daughter. I mean, what kind of man is that?"

HOROSCOPE

ARIES | March 21-April 20

You'll have privileges in your community. A broken band needs replacement or repair. A desired reunion is becoming a certainty.

TAURUS | April 21-May 21

It'll work out well when someone makes a move. The image of success will become understandable. Being obnoxious will defeat you.

GEMINI | May 22-June 21

Money becomes an issue with a friend. You'll surprise yourself with your regrets. Strange information may cause insecurity to arise.

CANCER | June 22-July 22

A twist of fate can lead to a blazing debate. A mentor's idea flashes with insights. Relaxing moments can be enjoyed, later.

LEO | July 23-Aug. 23

Be kind-hearted enough to step in to mediate. A deceitful person will be caught. A friend's relationship is at a high point.

VIRGO | Aug. 24-Sept. 22

Take back a derogatory comment. Avoid being careless around equipment. Flattery will get you somewhere in a hurry.

LIBRA | Sep. 23-Oct. 23

Doubt will arise because of someone's bad behaviour. Try not to be smug. Go shopping with someone who makes you laugh.

SCORPIO | Oct. 24-Nov. 22

The reason things won't work out is obvious. Pride will get in the way of success. Rumours about a love affair have upset people.

SAGITTARIUS | Nov. 23-Dec. 21

Making fun of someone will be a bad idea. Don't work too hard trying to lighten things up. Don't avoid answering questions.

CAPRICORN | Dec. 22-Jan. 20

The way you get around will be reviewed. Be resigned to waiting for a disgraceful person. A profit is made from a durable venture.

AQUARIUS | Jan. 21-Feb. 18

Your energy level will increase. Restrain your temper and your goals will be fulfilled. Don't waste any time worrying about problems.

PISCES | Feb. 19-Mar. 20

Your capacity to astound others will be noted. Commit yourself to a positive course of action. A friend needs help finding work. AVATAR VENUS

The digits 1 through 9 will appear exactly once in each row, each column, and each zone. (A zone is an outlined 3x3 grid within the larger puzzle grid. There are nine of these zones in the puzzle.) Do not enter a digit into a box if it already appears elsewhere in the same 3x3 zone, or in the same row across the puzzle, or column down the puzzle.
